Section H: This, the "Technology" section, begins with a list of U.S. and international equipment manufacturers and distributors, and continues with listings of frequency measuring services, videotext operations, teletext operations, videotext and teletext software and hardware suppliers, automated-channel suppliers, broadcast automation systems, and a directory of companies providing mobile production services. These listings include addresses, telephone numbers, and names of prinicipal executives. Next are lists of common carriers including land line, microwave & multipoint distribution services. On page H-57 a chart shows the growth of broadcasting., and on page A-62 a chart shows television and radio set sales from 1958-1985. The last part of Section H begins on page H-59 with the 1987 Buyer's Guide, the yellow pages, a commercial directory to equipment, programing and broadcast services.

Section I: is divided into three parts-Professional Services, Associations, and Broadcast Education. Part one provides listings of brokers and consultants, station financing firms, research services, technical consultants, law firms and attorneys in communications law, public relations services, talent agents, and employment services. Part two, Associations, begins on page I-50 with the National Association of Broadcasters and includes trade organizations, professional associations and societies, and unions. Broadcast Education, part three, opens on page I-55 with broadcasting schools. The section continues with reviews of recently published books related to the Fifth Estate. Section I concludes with a list of colleges and universities offering degrees and courses in radio and television.

Top 100 Television Advertisers

Procter & Gamble remains television's leading advertiser, spending nearly $780 million in network and spot television in 1985. It was followed in the top five by Philip Morris ($478 million), McDonald's ($303 million), Pepsico ($266 million) and R.J. Reynolds ($262 million).

The following is a list of the top 100 advertisers as compiled by the Television Bureau of Advertising from an analysis of data from Broadcast Advertisers Reports. An asterisk denotes that data has been adjusted to reflect mergers, acqusitions and divestitures.

Fifth Estate, Short Course

Much of the early effort of the Federal Radio Commission was required to straighten out the confusion in the broadcast band. It was impossible to accommodate the 732 broadcast stations then operating. New regulations caused about 150 of them to surrender their licenses.

Communications Act of 1934

At the request of President Roosevelt, the Secretary of Commerce in 1933 appointed an interdepartmental committee to study electronic communications. The committee recommended that Congress establish a single agency to regulate all interstate and foreign communication by wire and radio, including telegraph, telephone and broadcast. The Communications Act of 1934 created the Federal Communications Commission for this unified regulation. This is the statute under which the FCC operates and which it enforces. Several of its provisions were taken from the earlier Radio Act.

Federal Communications Commission

The FCC began operating on July 11, 1934, as an independent federal agency headed by seven commissioners, who are appointed by the President with the advice and consent of the Senate. Under legislation passed in 1982, the FCC was cut back to five commissioners in June 1983.

FCC Broadcast Regulation

One of the FCC's major activities is the regulation of broadcasting. This has three phases.

The first is the allocation of space in the radio frequency spectrum to the broadcast services and to many nonbroadcast services which also must be accommodated. In view of the tremendously increased use of radio technology in recent decades, the competing demands for frequencies are among the commission's most pressing problems. Fortunately, as technology has advanced, frequencies higher and higher in the spectrum have become usable. Apart from the frequencies used for broadcasting, frequencies in other portions of the spectrum are allocated for "broadcast auxiliary" use by remote pickup and other transmitters auxiliary to main broadcast stations (see Auxiliary Broadcast Services).

The second phase of regulation is the assignment of stations in each service within the allocated frequency bands, with specific location, frequency and power. The chief consideration, although by no means the only one, is to avoid interference with other stations on the same channel (frequency) or channels adjacent in the spectrum. If an application is granted, the applicant for a new station or for changed facilities receives a construction permit. Later, when the station is built and it is capable of operating as proposed, a license to operate is issued.

The third phase is regulation of existing stations: inspection to see that stations are operating in accordance with FCC rules and technical provisions of their authorizations, modifying the authorizations when necessary, assigning station call letters, licensing transmitter operators, processing requests to assign the station license to another party or transfer control of the licensee corporation and processing applications for renewal of license. At renewal time, the commission reviews the station's record to see if it is operating in the public interest.

The Nature of American Broadcasting

Although educational and other noncommercial stations share the airwaves, the American broadcasting system for the most part is a commercial system. In this respect it is supported by revenues from those who advertise goods or services to the audience. Advertising messages are presented as commercial "spot announcements" before, during and after programs, or as a part of "sponsored" programs.

Broadcast stations are licensed to serve the public interest, convenience and necessity. By law, each license must contain a statement that the licensee does not have any right to operate the station or use the frequency beyond the term of license. The maximum term of license for a radio station is seven years, the maximum term of license for a television station is five years.

Under requirements of the Communications Act, applicants must be legally, technically and financially qualified, and they must show that their proposed operation would be in the public interest. They must be citizens of the United States. Corporations with alien officers or directors or with more than one-fifth

A short course in broadcasting, 1987

There were 10,046 radio stations operating in the United States at the end of 1986. Of these, 4,856 were commercial AM's, 3,936 were commercial FM's and 1,254 were noncommercial FM's. There were 1,285 operating television stations: 547 commercial VHF's, 435 commercial UHF's, 111 noncommercial VHF's and 192 noncommercial UHF's. Most commercial TV's are network affiliated; approximately 325 operate as independents.

No single entity may own more than 12 stations in each service (AM, FM or TV). In TV, the entity is permitted to own 12 TV stations as long as they don't reach more than 25% of the nation's television homes. UHF's are assessed for only half of a market's television homes. Group broadcasters who buy interests in stations more than half owned by minorities are able to own up to 14 stations in a service, and are able to reach 30% of the nation's television households through their TV's, as long as two of the stations in each service are controlled by minorities. Newspaper owners may no longer purchase broadcast properties in the same market, nor may radio station owners acquire TV stations there, nor TV owners radio outlets. TV stations may no longer acquire cable TV franchises in the same city, and networks may not own cable systems at all.

In 1985, according to estimates by the Television Bureau of Advertising and the Radio Advertising Bureau, commercial broadcasting had total advertising revenues of approximately $26.5 billion. Television advertising accounted for $19.9 billion (75%) of revenues; radio advertising, for approximately $6.6 billion (25%). Public broadcasting had a 1985 income of $1.1 billion—16.3% from the federal government.

In 1985 television billings for stations and networks amounted to $8,300,000,000 (national network), $5,950,000,000 (national non-network), and $5,700,000,000 (local), according to estimates by the Television Bureau of Advertising. The Radio Advertising Bureau estimated radio billings for stations and networks were $328,700,000 (national network), $1,319,400,000 (national non-network), and $4,915,000,000 (local).

There are more than 87 million U.S. homes (98% of all homes) with television sets, about 57% of which have more than one set. About 83 million homes have color. It is estimated that about 96% of TV homes can receive UHF signals, and that about 47.0% are linked with cable systems, according to Arbitron Television. (Further data on cable TV appears in "A short course in cable, 1987" on page D-3.) There are an estimated 507 million radio sets in the U.S., 370 million (73%) of them in homes and 137 million (27%) out of homes.

The average American home watches TV for seven hours and ten minutes a day, according to A.C. Nielsen statistics for the calendar year 1985. And the latest study by The Roper Organization (commissioned by the Television Information Office) shows that 64% of the U.S. public turns to TV as the source of most of its news, and that 53% ranks it as the most believable news source.

The average 30-second prime-time network television announcement now costs $100,000 (spots on a top-rated series cost $200,000; low-rated spots average about $80,000). An estimated 120 million people watched the 1987 Super Bowl telecast. Thirty-second announcements during that event cost $600,000. Thirty-second announcements on individual TV stations range from $15,000 in top-rated specials in major markets to as low as $10 in the second-hundred markets. Radio spots cost from $1,000 or more in major markets to less than a dollar in small towns.

Group Ownership

Listed here are individuals and companies with multiple station holdings. Included are all those controlling three or more radio stations and/or two or more television stations. FCC rules limit multiple ownership to 12 AM stations, 12 FM stations and 12 television stations, as long as the 12 TV stations don't reach more than 25% of the nation's television homes. UHF's are assessed for only half of a market's television homes. Group broadcasters may own up to 14 stations in a service if two of the stations in each service are controlled by minorities. Ownership of cable TV systems, as reported by these stations, is also listed. Unless otherwise noted, the first station listed is group headquarters.

101 WAYS TO CUT LEGAL FEES & MANAGE YOUR LAWYER

A Practical Guide for Broadcasters and Cable Operators

In this candid, practical guidebook, communications "superlawyer" Erwin Krasnow (former General Counsel for the National Association of Broadcasters) strips away the mystique surrounding the legal profession to show broadcasters and cable operators how to:

- Select the right lawyer
- Enter into the best fee arrangement
- Get the most out of a lawyer
- Control legal costs
- Monitor and evaluate a lawyer's performance
- Remedy problems with lawyers

Order your copy of this valuable book today. At $29.95, it will pay for itself many times over.

Voice of America

Headquarters: 330 Independence Ave., S.W., Washington 20547. (202) 485-6231. Richard W. Carlson, dir; Morton S. Smith, deputy dir (modernization); Robert Frese, dir of engrg. Public affrs office: Jeni Norris, acting dir.

Policy

By law the Voice of America, a part of the U.S. Information Agency, operates under the following directive: The long-range interests of the United States are served by communicating directly with the people of the world by radio. To be effective, the Voice of America must win the attention and respect of listeners. These principals will govern VOA broadcasts.

1. VOA will serve as a consistently reliable and authoritative source of news. VOA news will be accurate, objective and comprehensive.

2. VOA will represent America, not any single segment of American society, and will therefore present a balanced and comprehensive projection of significant American thought and institutions.

3. VOA will present the policies of the United States clearly and effectively, and will also present responsible discussion and opinion on these policies.

To implement this directive, these broadcasts present news and news-related items on American and world events, news analyses, editorials, correspondents' reports, editorial roundups, and feature material such as documentaries, roundtable discussions, interviews and special events, all of which provides overseas audiences with a balanced and accurate portrayal of the many facets of American life and clear information regarding U.S. policies.

VOA broadcasts more than 1,100 hours per week in 42 languages to an estimated audience of 120 million adults worldwide.

Facilities

The Voice of America has a network of 111 transmitters: 31 in the continental United States and 80 overseas. These are short and medium wave stations ranging in power from 10 kw to 1,000 kw. The largest transmitter complex is at Greenville, N.C. There, 16 high-powered shortwave transmitters relay programs received via microwave from the Washington studios to audiences and relay stations abroad over 66 directional antennas. Total power at Greenville is 6,500 kw. Other domestic facilities are at Bethany, Ohio; Marathon, Fla. (MW); Delano and Dixon, both California.

Overseas relay stations are at: Munich, Germany; Kavala and Rhodes, Greece; Tangier, Morocco; Monrovia, Liberia; Tinang and Poro, The Philippines; Woofferton, England; Colombo, Sri Lanka; Bangkok, Thailand; Judge Bay, Antigua; Selebi-Phikwe, Botswana; Punta Gorda, Belize and Quesada, Costa Rica. These include short and medium wave transmitters, among which are two one-megawatt transmitters. VOA's total power is now 22,470,000 watts. Also 21 satellite circuits are used to feed VOA's overseas relay stations.

Field Services

Many VOA tapes, music recordings and script materials are furnished by United States Information Agency offices overseas for local distribution and broadcast. Other relays and rebroadcasts are made through arrangements with local broadcasters in Western Europe, Africa, the Near East, South Asia, the Far East and Latin America. For example, VOA's Spanish-language feed of 25 daily (M-F) correspondent reports are broadast a total of 2000 times on stations and networks throughout the southern hemisphere.

Armed Forces Radio and Television Service (AFRTS).

AFRTS operates over 800 radio and television outlets located in 56 foreign countries. AFRTS facilities are established with major concentrations of U.S. forces overseas as well as in remote areas of Alaska, U.S. trusts, territories and possessions, aboard 542 Navy ships and as closed-circuit facilities in 243 isolated locations. Most of the land-based stations are grouped into regional AFRTS networks to serve specific geographical areas, i.e. American Forces Network-Europe in Europe and Far East Network in the Pacific. AFRTS networks and independent stations overseas create their own individual radio and television program schedules from broadcast materials provided by the AFRTS Broadcast Center in Sun Valley, Calif. and from their own local productions. Some outlets are broadcast operations and some are carried on closed circuit systems of various types. Domestic and Intelsat satellite service is leased on a 24 hour-a-day basis, providing real-time stateside radio and TV to overseas locations.

Radio City of License with County or Market Population

The following is an alphageographical listing of every city of license with a commercial radio station. The middle column is the county, and the last column is the population of the county. Population figures followed by an asterisk represent metropolitan markets which include more than one county.

The figures are from the Bureau of the Census and Standard Rate and Data Service.

(1) Channel, power and antenna. WOF-TV operates with 200 kilowatts (effective radiated power) visual and 20 kilowatts aural. Its antenna is 500 feet above average terrain and 300 feet above the ground; it holds a construction permit for a height increase.

(2) Date station first went on the air (regardless of subsequent ownership changes).

(3) Address and zip code, telephone, Teletype Write Exchange number.

(4) Licensee name and date of acquisition (if not original owner).

(5) Ownership. Acme Stations owns WOF-TV and several other broadcast properties, all detailed in the Group Ownership directory in section A. The station additionally has print media connections, explained in the Newspaper directory (also section A). Principal stockholders are listed for independently owned stations.

(6) Network, foreign language, rep and Washington attorney. The primary WOF-TV national affiliate is CBS, the secondary is NBC. The station broadcasts two hours of Spanish a week. Sales representatives are listed with the national rep first, then regional.

(7) Personnel.

(8) Cable and translators. WOF-TV is carried on six cable TV systems with a total of 20,000 subscribers, and on ten rebroadcasting translators.

(9) Co-owned radio. WOF-TV has the same licensee as WOF-AM-FM.

(10) Advertising rates. The prices the station charges for a 30-second spot are shown for each of three day-parts:

Prime time; early fringe; daytime.

in that order. If a day-part is inapplicable a dash (—) replaces the rate.

* An asterisk indicates noncommercial stations.

ADI. Immediately beneath every city heading is the ranked market Area of Dominant Influence into which the city falls. ADI details are presented in the ADI Atlas.

Resources on Foreign and International Electronic Media

Prepared by Christopher H. Sterling, Director, Telecommunications Policy Program, George Washington University.

Listed and briefly annotated here is a selection from the current English-language periodical and book-length material on broadcasting, cable and newer media in other parts of the world. The emphasis is on the most recent material available, so listings from previous YEARBOOK*s should be consulted for older items. Citations are found under one of the following headings: general, policy and law, world journalism, Britain and Western Europe, the Soviet Sphere, general Third World, The Middle East, Asia and Oceania, Africa, the Americas, and International Communications and Propaganda. (For material on American electronic media, see the last section of this* YEARBOOK.) Information listed here is current as of December 1986.

General

COMBROAD. London: Commonwealth Broadcasting Association, quarterly. Issues cover technical, policy, and program developments in member countries of the British Commonwealth, especially in Africa.

Gerbner, George, and Marsha Siefert, eds. World Communications: A Handbook. New York: Longman, 1983. 544 pp. $35.00. It is not really a handbook, but it provides a very good collection of scholarly articles on all aspects of media around the world, arranged in topical rather than regional sections.

Head, Sydney W. World Broadcasting Systems: A Comparative Analysis. Belmont, CA: Wadsworth, 1985. 457 pp. Best place to begin for an analytic rather than a regional approach. Chapters on ownership types, access, laws and regulation, economics, facilities, programs and programing, audience research, and international broadcasting.

Howell, W.J. Jr. World Broadcasting in the Age of the Satellite. Norwood, NJ: Ablex, 1986. 322 pp. $45.00/29.95. Basically descriptive assessment arranged by region (divided into four worlds, the fourth being culturally pluralistic societies), plus chapters on international organizations, international shortwave and satellite broadcasting, and national comparisons.

Lichty, Lawrence W., comp. World and International Broadcasting: A Bibliography. Washington: Broadcast Education Association, 1971. 600 pp. Dated and not annotated—but a good starting point for material through the late 1960s on virtually any country of the world.

Television Marketplace

The ADI Market Atlas

The Area of Dominant Influence is a geographic market design that defines each television market exclusive of the others, based on measurable viewing patterns. Each market's ADI consists of all counties in which the home market stations receive a preponderance of viewing, and every county in the continental U.S. is allocated exclusively to one ADI—there is no overlap. The total of all ADI's represents the total television households in the U.S.

The ADI is a standard market definition. As a television buying tool it is a geographic and demographic means for maximum efficiency. As a station tool it has applications for sales, programing, and promotion planning.

Following, in alphabetical order, are Arbitron Television's 213 ADI markets for 1986-87, with coverage maps for each; and county by county breakouts of TV households. Other data include the market's stations, their cities of license, channel numbers and network affiliations.

Coverage maps show total survey areas in white, the ADI's themselves in light crosshatching, and Arbitron Metro Rating Areas in heavier crosshatching. The survey areas consist of all counties in which the home market stations are viewed to any significant extent, including via cable. The Metro Areas usually conform to U.S. Census Standard Metropolitan Statistical Areas.

Non-ADI markets do not meet Arbitron's criteria for having an ADI of their own; they are listed with the ADI of which they are a part.

A complete listing of the non-ADI markets and a cross-reference list for cities in multi-city ADI's appear on page C-149.

Non-ADI Markets

The following single-county markets did not acheive ADI status because the preponderance of viewing is not to the home-market station. Neither did they meet the criteria of the 10% Rule to become an ADI. The home counties in non-ADI markets are assigned to the ADIs that do receive the preponderance of viewing.
